

Molly's First Vacation – Part Two

(Taft, Kenyon, Dayton)

The William Howard Taft National Historic Site, Cincinnati, Ohio

Molly was very content resting on the floor watching us reading museum captions (and looking at old furniture, not shown here) until she discovered that there was a fireplace that made a natural dog crate. She says it can be her room if we move here.

Kenyon College, Edward's 55th Reunion

One of the most beautiful college campuses in the US

A reception hosted by the college president

Molly was issued a name tag so she could eat in the student dining hall.

Attempts to fit her with a freshman beany failed, So Heidi decorated a baby bonnet.

Molly is long experienced at sleeping under a chair at churches and synagogues – on this occasion she slept under a chair at a college choir concert and during a 75 minute class we audited at the college, as well as several formal dinners and a reception.

National Museum of the Air Force, Dayton, Ohio

The Memphis Belle was in Memphis earlier,

but is better restored and maintained in Dayton

Many acres of planes, displayed indoors. Excellent historical displays, charts, and films of important air military history.

Resting in the motel after a hard day sightseeing.
